

Mr. Donzel Clayton Wildey Jr.

August 13, 1947 - June 13, 2012

On June 13, 2012, D. Clayton (Clay) Wildey, age 64, owner of The Nut Farm and Creamery at Greenspring Station in Lutherville, MD, died at GBMC Hospital in Baltimore following a courageous battle with cancer. He lived with his beloved wife Marjorie Cole Wildey on Stanmore Road in Rogers Forge since 1969. He is also survived by his children Michael D. Wildey and his wife Tricia of Centreville, VA, David C. Wildey and his companion Sarah Hoffman of Crofton, MD and T. Ian Wildey and his wife Amy of Wayne, PA. He is the cherished grandfather of Rachel, Ross, Leah, Spencer, Charlie and Henry Wildey. He is the beloved son of Ellen Wildey of Wilmington, DE and the brother of Sue Ellen Osborn and Paul Wildey also of Delaware. Clay is also survived by many other loving family members including nieces and nephews who will miss his welcoming smile. An avid sports fan, he coached all three of his sons in football, soccer and baseball at the sports programs sponsored by the Towson Recreation Council. His other love was his weekend retreat on the Susquehanna River in Pennsylvania that he shared with his wife and family.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made in memory of Clay Wildey to the Prostate Cancer Foundations, www.pcf.org.
