“ I just found this posting for Mrs Carter. I am so sad to hear it. Mrs. Carter was a second mother to me. She taught me to cook and how to iron and how to take care of a house. She taught me to show love in my food and my chores. She made me an easter basket every year because my parents did not believe in easter. She included me in their family christmas eve ritual. I know I would not be the person I am today without her. I am so sad i did not know till now she died. Jason if you get this please look me up. May we all show love in everything we do.
