“ In 1954 a high school friend and David arranged a blind date for me with Lou Olsen, a friend from his neighborhood. several years later, Lou and I were married! Later I introduced David to a teacher friend of mine, Jeanette! David always said that I was just trying to get even!

From my son, Kirk "Dave's laughter bubbled up from deep down in his soul."

Loving and missing Dave and his laugh. Lenora Olsen

“ David and Jeanette were our very first neighbors in Baltimore. We lived across the street from each other for 6 years, and had a number of wonderful friends in common. When we relocated to other, more distant, places, in the following years, we visited on a number of occasions in a variety of locales. Something that did not change over the years was David's zest for life and his respect and love for his family and friends. For sure, he was "one of a kind"! So glad to have all the memories with our one-time neighbors!

“ When I was 5, I stepped into his hardening cement sidewalk and he embraced it. Shoes ruined; neighborly bonds strengthened. I miss the smell of vanilla corn cob pipe all the time. Steve church
