“ *Judy, Bruce, and family,
Thinking of you today as you say good-bye to Jack. When I think of Jack I immediately think of him with Mason, Colton, and his other grandchildren. He really enjoyed spending time with them. He didn't just watch them when he was with them - he spent quality time with them. They were very lucky to have him in their lives. I know they'll miss him a lot! That says a lot about someone! We are so sorry for your loss!*

“ Nicki and family, our deepest sympathies at this time of your loss. We want you to know we are thinking of you. No doubt that your Dad was a great man, based on the family he leaves behind and the many nice tributes that you will hear as you say goodbye.
*Your friends at Cornerstone,
Delora, John & PJ*

“ Like Jason, I remember that horrible white van...I could be wrong, but most of the time I got to sit on a milk crate. We seemed to make an adventure out of everything. The penny tosses, super balls, silly putty....he really did everything he could to make sure we had a good time. He was always there for us, a great Uncle and a great friend. He will be missed by so many of us.

take part in at yours and Judy Hoody's annual picnics. Three legged races , wheel barrel races and especially the Egg Toss Challenge!! You gave them and us all memories to smile on. And last, I think somehow you'll meet up with the younger members of our family who went before you and continue those adventures. Thank you Jack ever so much. Love these many years. Your willingness and courage in fighting demons. Your encouraging words and support as our family endured tragedy and heartbreak. Your humor and wit. Your love. Your light was a steady warm glow. A loving father and friend to your children, grandchildren. A teacher, a piper. Leading crop after crop of children through these

It definitely stuck with us. I can't wait to teach the girls those things... More

Today the world lost someone very special. While I haven't seen him in many years, Jack was an instrumental part of my childhood. He was always there to make us laugh pretending to eat bugs(I'm pretty sure pretending haha). I got my first blood blister working with him laying bricks. We mad home made pizza bagels that were the best bar none. I can remember him doing his 100 push ups before bed each night while we egged him on. We(the kids) were the garbanza beans and to me he was always one of a kind. You could

“ Our beloved Jack. Such an important member of our family. A little bit shy gentle loving man who has given us all such wonderful memories. Each crop of kids has had their childhoods enriched by his presence. While adults sat and talked, Jack would gather all the kids together and march them down to a little stream. Or to McD's. He talked to them he played games and he taught them things in the most creative ways. He gave them "Garbonza bean nicknames" He always carried tiny super bouncy balls for them in his pocket. He showed them so many things to do with silly putty. He pitched pennies in the hallway he always found a way to have fun with them. At family picnics at his and Judys he would organize an egg toss. I remember one time we turned the table on him and threw all the eggs at him. Many of these children are now in their forties and they will forever remember those fun times with Jack. His newest crop included his grandchildren and nieces and nephews. Each day meeting them, even up to 2 days before his death, and having yet another new adventure with them. We will all miss this loving man but never as much as all the children he has touched in this life. I just hope he finds some of the young people in our family who left before him and continues the adventure. RIP dear Jack, love

“ My fondest memories of Jack are from when I was very young. I remember very often he took me, Josh, & Katie bowling at Perring Parkway. He had a terrible white work van with coffee stains on it's ceiling. I vaguely remember Jack's story about the coffee stains being from Judy trying to throw it at him during an argument lol. Another memory is from the countless cookouts at Dowling Circle. Jack would gather all the young children, give us handfuls of change, and we'd play pitch, or "closest to the wall". Jack was a great man, and will sorely be missed.
