Meg once said that because she was a poet, “this sensibility informs the majority of my perceptions and interactions with the world.”

from <http://iccreatives.us/creatives/meg-white/>

She was a generous person of extraordinary vision and ironic humor.

Yes, she was, Frank, yes...she was. From what I read, her gifts left so much of her that IS. Things I had no idea of. The Agape Cafe remains as a testament to her vision. It IS. Not only spearheading a change in a "body politic," but also succeeding leaves behind a direction. One pointed squarely on the horizon of Meg's vision. That change IS. As for ironic humor~the flood-gates of my memory of sharing the greatest, most delicious dish of all with one Meg White can still grab me by the gut, and double me over in a fit of laughter~ Laughter that rings out still, and most definately IS. We love Meg. Meg IS~
