“ She was a hellish teacher when you were in her class, but once you finished her class and you looked back, she taught you more than English she taught you about life. From time to time when I sit down to write I think of her and wish I told her that she was loved

“ What an amazing professor and person. I will always remember her reading in Middle English.

“ As a student I remember what attracted me to Sister Marie Michelle was her kind heart. I would come to learn and share her passion for Old English, Literature of Fantasy and Beowulf. Everytime someone mentions a family tree I remember how I would marvel at her ability to map out middle Earth and Bilbos lineage. She was an amazing scholar, professor and friend.

Loving the stories was the starting point. She taught careful research, clear writing, and modern approaches to delivering good work. So grateful for her influence.
