My most notable and lasting memory of cousin-in-law Steve occurred in 1971 when Steve and wife Janet invited my new wife Betty and I to a get-acquainted dinner and movie.
During the discussion of what (traditional-type) movie to see I suddenly suggested a very new and popular action-film "Dirty Harry" starring Clint Eastwood with a huge .44 magnum handgun.
After a seemingly long silence, Steve mentioned that he thought it was a great and very exciting choice and so we attended.
Upon knowing Steve over the years and remembering his support in seeing the movie "Dirty Harry" made me better appreciate what a gracious, self-sacrificing and great cousin-in-law he was.
By the way we never got around to jointly attending another movie again;(

God Bless You Steve!
