“ I felt so blessed to have met Walt when I first moved to Baltimore (1987) and began working at the Baltimore Sun three years before he retired. He always had a smile and was approachable for photographic advice. He was a font of information about Baltimore's history and had many stories which he loved to tell! Walt, who had ten children, was a father figure to me. He was a wonderful man who set a great example of living by faith and for family. With deepest sympathy to all his family.

“ We loved to see his face light up in church when our grandchildren would walk past him. He really seemed to enjoy seeing the little ones.
